New Zealand Fire Service to receive its first PSS 5000 DP new generation self contained breathing apparatus

Wellington, New Zealand – Following the announcement of the New Zealand Fire Service in late December 2010 that Dräger would become the preferred supplier of Self Contained Breathing Apparatus to the New Zealand Fire Service, the National Commander of the New Zealand Fire Service, Mike Hall, together with the National Procurement Manager, Peter Kiernan, have recently taken receipt of the first PSS 5000 DP breathing apparatus. The official hand-over took place during a visit of the two New Zealand Fire Service representatives at Dräger's head office in Luebeck, Germany and the CEO of Dräger, Stefan Dräger, didn't want to miss the opportunity to present the first set to Mike Hall.
